President's Message

Several years ago, my mother's church burned to the ground. The rebuilt church is a more modest structure than its predecessor, but it incorporates the latest audio video technology. A power point slide augments the traditional call and response reading and words projected on a giant screen replace the hymnal. Some might cringe at the intrusion of technology into the sanctuary, but it works – no more hurried search through the hymnal for the numbered song, no need to decipher the words of the soft-spoken lay leader.

Although I welcomed technological innovation in my mother's church, I was less willing to embrace the findings of a recent U. S. Department of Education study, A Review of Evidence-Based Practices in Online Learning (www.ed.gov/rschstat/eval/tech/evidence-based-practices/final-report.pdf, 2009). A meta-analysis that began with over a thousand empirical studies of online learning, the report concludes "on average, students in online learning conditions performed better than those receiving face-to-face instruction." The finding is unsettling because I make a living teaching at a liberal arts college, but I console myself with the knowledge that the majority of the 51 studies included in the analysis involved adult learners not traditional aged students.

Without a doubt, technology has created new opportunities for lifelong learning, not only for job-related or vocational training, but also in the liberal arts and sciences. A truck-driv-

John Seery Wins Sidney Hook Memorial Award

John Seery, the George Irving Thompson Memorial Professor of Government and Professor of Politics at Pomona College, is the recipient of Phi Beta Kappa's Sidney Hook Memorial Award. The award was presented at the closing banquet of the 42nd Triennial Council of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, Saturday, October 3, 2009 in Austin, Texas.

The Sidney Hook award recognizes national distinction by a single scholar in each of three areas - scholarship, teaching, and leadership in the cause of undergraduate education. Professor Seery has twice been a recipient of Pomona's Wig Distinguished Teaching Award and is the author of several books on political theory. Professor Seery was a panelist at our local association's "Conversation about the Liberal Arts" in 2002.

The Sidney Hook award, given once every three years, was established in 1991 in memory of the distinguished American philosopher Sidney Hook (1902-1989). The $7500 award is made possible by a grant from the John Dewey Foundation.
